

Andrew Durgin-Barnes

Born in San Diego, CA, Andrew Durgin-Barnes has lived throughout the US, drawing inspiration from an amalgam of the varied landscapes and sceneries of his life. His paintings express narratives through a conceptual collage of his own history, combined with classical motifs of allegory, to draw on the emotions that form the human condition. The influences of Classicism, a mastery of traditional mediums and the forgotten practice of plein-air painting, are tangibly interlaced with elements from graffiti and urban sprawl, creating surreal scenes that ignore a separation of time and space; juxtaposing an old world with the new one.
